Regular screenings with a board-certified dermatologist are the most effective way to detect skin cancers, and to identify and correct skin diseases of all kinds. The incidence of serious but treatable skin cancers is on the rise. It is the most common cancer in the world with more than 13 million cases diagnosed annually. One in five Americans will develop skin cancer during their lifetime. The risks associated with skin cancer can be dramatically reduced through early detection and treatment.

With early detection, skin cancer is highly treatable. Your dermatologist will be able to scan your skin and identify areas needing further evaluation or treatment. If you have a skin cancer your dermatologist can review the wide range of treatment options available to you, which will eliminate that cancer and leave you feeling healthy and assured. Your dermatologist can also help you with any other skin concerns you may have from acne to warts. Visit your dermatologist today to look and feel your best.

Following your visit to a board-certified dermatologist, you can reduce your future risk with these simple steps:

- Prevent – find shade, cover up and wear a sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher.
- Detect – perform regular skin self-examinations and look for new or changing spots on your skin.
- Live – See a board-certified dermatologist at any of our locations should you notice any new or suspicious spots on your skin, or anything changing, itching or bleeding.

A full body skin cancer screening is a great opportunity for people, with spots or growths which concern them, to come in and get an expert evaluation. If you notice any new or suspicious spots on your skin, or anything changing, itching or bleeding, see one of Pennsylvania Dermatology Partners board-certified dermatologists.
