ULTHERAPY

A Safe Option for Skin Tightening

Nowadays, people want an option for skin tightening that has no downtime, is noninvasive, but provides great results. Ultherapy is a skin tightening treatment that's non-surgical and uses focused ultrasound as its energy source. It lifts wrinkled, sagging and crepey skin with treatments taking anywhere between 30 to 60 minutes depending on the number of areas being treated. It can be performed on various parts of the face, neck and décolleté. It stimulates your body to regenerate new collagen formation which, over time, gradually tightens and lifts skin. Ultherapy is safe, and usually only takes about one to two treatments and the results can last quite a long time.

Ultherapy is a nice alternative for people who might not want a neuromodulator like Botox® or Dysport® injected. It's also a great addition for patients who have neuromodulators injected to help provide longer-lasting results.

The upper and lower face are the most popular areas treated with Ultherapy to lift and firm the eyes, cheeks and jowls which tend to show signs of aging faster.

Patients can expect a gradual build within two to three months. Because the results build gradually over time, before and after photos will really help you see the benefits of your Ultherapy treatment. Typically one treatment is all that is required, however, some patients will find more optimal results with multiple treatments.
