7 LEGAL AND FINANCIAL STEPS TO CLOSING YOUR SMALL BUSINESS

(from <https://www.score.org/blog/7-legal-and-financial-steps-closing-your-small-business>)

By Nellie Akalp

For a variety of reasons, some small businesses permanently close their doors. Closing a company may be a difficult decision to make, and it can become even more challenging when a business owner does not take the proper steps.

Exiting a business involves more than just ceasing to advertise and ending sales of products and services. It also requires filing paperwork to officially dissolve your business with the state and taking care of other formalities. Failing to take care of those details could mean being on the hook for fees (and possibly fines) even when a business is not serving its customers anymore.

Here are the 7 Steps to Closing a Business

Step #1 — Dissolve Your Business Entity

Companies operating as an LLC or corporation must legally dissolve that business structure so that the state knows it's no longer in operation. This involves filing Articles of Dissolution with the Secretary of State office. Businesses with multiple owners will need to first hold a meeting with their business partners or Board of Directors to get a consensus vote on closing the business. Note that states rules may vary slightly, so it's important to research what you need to do in the state where your business is registered.

Step #2 — Collect Money Owed to You and Sell Your Assets

As you pay suppliers and vendors what you owe them before you close your business, you will want to reach out to customers that owe you money. If you are having difficulty collecting, one option is to ensure you get some of what is owed is to sell your accounts receivable to a factor. A factor will compensate you for a portion of the money that has owed you, and then they assume ownership (and the task of collecting the money) of the receivables.

Selling your business assets and inventory can also generate cash for you before you close your company. Some ways to handle this are using sites like Craigslist or eBay, holding an auction, and personally reaching out to other business owners who might need what you're selling.

Step #3 — Pay Your Outstanding Debts

Take care of outstanding bills from vendors and service providers to close out your accounts payable. If you are unable to pay what you owe, discuss your options with an attorney.

Step #4: File Final Payroll Taxes and Pay State Sales Tax

If you have employees, after you have paid them their final wages and salaries, submit your payroll forms as usual and pay your final payroll taxes. What if you are unable to pay what you owe in payroll taxes? Filing an "Offer in Compromise" (<https://www.irs.gov/forms-pubs/about-form-656>) might enable you to reduce the amount that you owe. Another option to consider is agreeing to pay your tax due in installments.

Also, submit your final state sales tax forms with the tax you have collected from your customers. Then, find out what your state tax agency requires you to do to officially close out your tax account.

Step #5 — Submit Your Final Income Tax Return

LLCs and corporations must check the "final return" box when filing their income tax forms. Corporations also need to report shareholder allocations (and losses) on Schedule K-1 (<https://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/f1065sk1.pdf>).

Heed the deadlines for submitting final tax documents:

- LLCs — By April 15 of the year after the business dissolved
- Corporations — Within two months and 15 days from when the business dissolved

Businesses that close must also close their Employer Identification Number account with the IRS (<https://www.irs.gov/businesses/small-businesses-self> employed/canceling-an-ein-closing-your-account).

Step #6 — Cancel Business Licenses and Permits

If you have needed business licenses and permits from the federal, state, county, or local governments, notify them that your company has closed. That way, you will not be charged renewal fees or be on the hook for taxes after you are no longer doing business.

Print is not dead. In fact, in recent years, a flurry of studies has shown that the reading experience online is less immersive and enjoyable than print, which has implications for how we consume and retain information. These studies show that readers tend to skim and jump around online more than they do in print. Print provides a more linear, less distracting way of reading, which in turn increases comprehension.

Step #7 — Distribute Assets to Partners or Shareholders

Businesses that have multiple owners and money or assets left over after paying all debts should distribute them among partners or shareholders. LLCs will divide assets according to each partner's share of the business. Corporations will allocate assets according to the shares owned by each shareholder.

Don't Miss a Thing – Get Help!

As you can see, closing a business comes with many responsibilities. To make sure you cover all the bases as you work through the process, I recommend reaching out to legal and accounting professionals who can provide expert guidance. Also, you might find that an online business document filing service will make submitting your dissolution paperwork and canceling licenses and permits less daunting.
