

Keller Williams Realty Group Opens State Of The Art Office In Collegeville

Terese Brittingham, broker/owner at Keller Williams Realty Group, recently announced the grand opening of a brand new, state of the art office at 400 Arcola Road, Collegeville, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania.

The office includes top tier facilities, advanced technology and premier level agent training. The addition of the new Collegeville office joins the Limerick and Quakertown offices in providing premium real estate services to the counties of Montgomery, Chester, Berks, Bucks, Delaware, Lehigh and Philadelphia.

"We are blessed in these changing times to be one of the companies that is growing at a rapid pace. I give all the credit to the agents and leadership for pivoting in times of unrest and turmoil in our world and I'm beyond proud of everyone I am in business with. Bringing our business back to my home town of Collegeville is a goal and dream that has now been achieved," said Brittingham. "We look forward to serving your real estate needs. If you are in the real estate business or thinking about it and want to grow a career worth having please reach out for a confidential conversation."

Keller Williams Realty Group was established in 2002 by co-founders Terese Brittingham and Tom McCouch. In the beginning, the small business only included about 25 realtors, but jumping forward to the present, that number has skyrocketed to over 250 in the Market Center. Our initial vision was to create a safe place where realtors could have a strong voice and connect with a community, and such is still a crucial focus today. In addition, we also focus on the importance of education within KW, which produces highly professional agents in the business.

Colleen Whalen, Team Leader at Keller Williams Realty Group, is excited about "the new state of the art 21,000 square feet, purposefully designed to support agents in their productivity and profitably. We continue to uphold our KW culture, the #1 reason agents come to Keller Williams. Working together to build great businesses and careers worth having."
