

ARIANNA RUMLEY

AriCares Childcare Center is a family-centered childcare provider coming to Pottstown, Pennsylvania this September 2026, rooted in compassion, dignity, and service. Founded by Arianna Rumley, AriCares was created with a clear mission: to strengthen both businesses and families by providing children with safe, structured, and nurturing care during the hours when working families need it most. The center will serve children ages 18 months through 5 years, offering toddler care, preschool, and Pre-K programs through a 24-hour workforce childcare model designed to support employees working evenings, overnight shifts, weekends, and other non-traditional schedules.

Christian values guide the way AriCares approaches every child, family, and interaction — with compassion, gentleness, integrity, patience, and love. Families from all backgrounds and beliefs are warmly welcomed, and for those who desire it, optional faith-based enrichment is available, including Christian instruction, mentorship opportunities rooted in Biblical values, and spiritual development activities. The result is an inclusive environment where every child feels safe, valued, and genuinely cared for.

AriCares also maintains strategic partnerships with local churches and Christian organizations to connect families with essential community resources — from emergency assistance to mentorship and family outreach programs. This network of support reflects AriCares’ belief that quality childcare extends beyond the classroom and into the broader wellbeing of the whole family, especially those navigating difficult seasons of life.

As AriCares prepares to open its pilot center in Pottstown this fall, the team is actively seeking local businesses interested in reserving dedicated childcare slots for their employees. Reliable childcare access helps employees show up consistently, strengthens staff retention, and reduces costly last-minute scheduling disruptions — making AriCares a smart investment for employers and a lifeline for working families.
